even a pimple. That insidious disease, Scrofule, is the fruitful cause of innumerable com-plaints, Consumption being only one of many equally fatal. Eruptions, nices, sore eyes, glandular swellings, weak and wasted muscles, a capricious appetite, and the like, are pretty sure indisystem. Many otherwise beautiful faces are disfigured by pimples, eruptions, and unsightly blotches, which arise from impure blood, showing the need of Ayer's Sarsaparilla to remedy the evil.

All sufferers from blood disorders should give Ayer's Sarsaparilla a fair trial,—avoiding all powders, olntiments, and washes, and especially cheap and worthless compounds, which not only fail to effect a cure, but more frequently aggravate and confirm the diseases they are fraudulently advertised to remedy.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,

When I was the doctor's student be ras the surgeon to the board of police. and as such was required to take care of all police patients when they were under arrest. He was required to treat all policemen and all prisoners without harge, but was entitled to fees from hose who went to the station house fer aid. One night he was out and I was in the office alone, when an officer entered and said: "Where's the doctor? There is an Italian sailor down at No. - , who is badly cut up. He walked in just now and reported that he had been attacked in a saloon. He is in a bad shape and a few bandages, some plaster and a case of instruments and started to the station bours. I found the fellow in bad shape, out so bones were broken and no vital par; was injured. I seen had him all fixed, except one wound in the side, which had been made by a stiletto.

Just before I began to dress that one of the policemen whispered that he had plenty of money, and that if I made him pay be would have less with which to get into another row. Consequently I mildly suggested that the bill would be $10. The swore that he would not pay, but said it would be well to collect from the nan who had done the cutting. The doctor entered as the man declined to liquidate. He said nothing about money, but asked me if I had fixed him up in good shape. I informed him that he was all right except that the stab wound needed dressing. With that he asked to look at it, and taking a curved probe he inserted it in the wound and remarked:

"Don't you think you had better pay the fee?" "Me no paya centa," replied the man; "fella what cutta, he paya." But the doctor had not the time to find that fellow. Instead he twisted the probe a words: "And that nong bird sang of a summer coming night, was it true." Beneath these words were: "Diamond ornaments and to say that by the use of the Shaker Extended of Roots (Siegel's Syrap) I was carred. Again the probe was turned, this time with a slight wrenching motion. Great Scott! You ought to have heard that Italian yell. The expletives which he poured out could not be reproduced. But the last portion of his remarks were entirely satisfactory. "Take it outa." he yelled; "take it outa. Ave Maria! I paya anything." He paid. - Baltimore Amer-

Beauty and Puguacity. The sticklebacks are all great fighters; and it may be broadly laid down once more as a general principle of animal life. and at the same time a contribution to the theory, of tittlebats, that all very handsome and decorated creatures are naturally pugnacious of disposition. Thus, stags fight one another with their branching antiers for the possession of the does. Salmon constantly join battle and tear one another to pieces savagely on the recognized spawning bed. The polyga-mous ruff, distinguished from his sober suited mate, the reeve, by his curious cost, and by the great collar of plumes from which his name is taken, is as full of the Homeric joy of battle as a game cock, and quite as gamy. own barndoor fowl "does battle in defense of his seraglio till one of the combatants drops down dead." Black cock and capercailzie assemble annually, at regular rnaments, to fight one another, and display their beauty before their expectant and undecided dames; and on such occasions Kovalevsky has seen the snow of their arenas in Russia all red with blood and covered with the torn out feathers of the champions. Most of the handsomest birds and animals, indeed, are provided with special weapons for these fierce enounters, such as the spurs of game birds, the horns of autelopes, the antiers of stags, the tusks of the musk deer, the wing darts of the palamedia, and the fierce, spiny fins of the most decorative fishes. Even the dainty little humming birds themselves are prodigious fighters, and I have seen them engaging one another in their aerial battles with the utmost pluck, vigor and endurance. Furthermore, beauty nimals is almost always accompanied as Dr. Gunther has observed, by a very hasty and irritable temper.—Popular

Birds as Seed Distributors. It is almost incredible the number of times a robin redbreast will come and go after berries, always with a great rustling of leaves, and his alighting and departing usually followed by a liberal scattering of fruit on the ground, which he never seems to think of picking up—wasteful marauder—not only taking all he wants, but actually spoiling as much as he takes away. Birds are probably responsible for the existence of many of the seed bearing shrubs and herbs. They are seed distributors, conveying seeds further than the their favorite food. They sow garget where it is not welcome; barberries they have scattered broadcast about their neighborhood (that to be set down in heir favor), and I suspect them of the lovely service of increasing the number of bushes of wild brier rose—the sweet brier
